Introduction

Tell MAMA's Research Team uncovered a range of racist, inflammatory material linked to several social media accounts belonging to the Dover asylum centre bomber Andrew ‘Andy’ Leak. To draw attention to the ideologies displayed over many years, we felt a short briefing drawing upon our findings, in-house research, and academic reports would help stakeholders and the wider public make sense of this horrendous event.

The anti-Muslim hostility and animus draw on a process of “Othering” that Udah and Singh (2019) define as positions created in opposition to the dominant white “Self”. Crucially, they add, this “Self-Other” binary is just that: an imagined falsehood; born from a racialised construction that defines oneself through repeated (our emphasis) vilification and projecting all negative beliefs towards that out-group more broadly. Examples of this repeated vilification and stigmatisation include blaming Muslims collectively (e.g. using language like “their culture”) for the horrific crimes of child sexual abuse and the structural failing of public institutions in supporting vulnerable children.Thematically, such language reflects these racialised frameworks highlighted in previous Tell MAMA annual reports. Both online and on our streets, as case studies we have published included verbal abuse, hate materials, and threats. The racist murder of the Muslim pensioner Mushin Ahmed is a reminder of how inflammatory rhetoric can lead to street-level violence with tragic consequences.

The briefing though short will demonstrate examples of where Andrew Leak expressed more violent sentiments on Twitter – targeting refugees and Muslims, including a calling for the indiscriminate murder of refugees in Europe in reply to a racist tweet linking them to “Islamic terrorism” to which he replied, “It’s time to get the spitfires out” on September 26, 2022, just over a month before the attack on the asylum centre. The escalating violent anti-Muslim and Islamophobic tweets culminated with Leak allegedly declaring a desire to murder Muslim children an hour before the attacks occurred.

We also urge politicians and the media to resist engaging in divisive, stigmatising and inflammatory rhetoric, especially when such statements risk inflaming sentiments on social media.

Twitter took the welcome step to suspend the most recent account of Mr Leak. Our briefing identified various others (though they had far less reach than the most recent account). It raises pressing questions about if police forces were aware of the escalating, harmful and violent language. Twitter must clarify when the account was flagged for removal, as Kent Police must also clarify if Andrew Leak was known to the authorities before such terror occurred.

Social media hate: a pattern of far-right, anti-refugee and anti-Muslim views

The Facebook profile of the man responsible for firebombing an asylum centre in Dover contained anti-Muslim, anti-refugee, and vaccine conspiracy materials, as counter-terror police investigate a possible terror motive days after taking over the investigation.

Andrew Leak, 66, from High Wycombe, drove over 100 miles to attack the centre with three petrol bombs before taking his own life.

Tell MAMA's investigation following the findings of Kent Online and HOPE Not Hate uncovered an inactive Twitter account potentially linked to Andrew Leak from 2014, which included following the far-right, neo-fascist British National Party and calling for the internment of all "radical Muslims".

In late May 2022, tweets from a now-suspended Twitter account of Leak reveal an underlying desire to target refugees in Dover. For example, in reply to a recovered lifeboat, he wrote: "If you own a jet ski we are starting up we are starting up our own patrols join us". A further tweet called for the closing of a different refugee centre.

Somewhat ominously, on May 24, 2022, replying to an article on terrorism, Leak replied: “That’s why we do not use the Internet we use the post and the dark Web Every man has the right to defend his own country to his own country and not be called a terrorist you are a terrorist by terrorist who are blowing us up.”
The @AndyLeak3 account would post other tweets that upped the inflammatory rhetoric, hinting at a pathway to violence with statements like “What else did they expect keep poking keep poking and you will be poked back” in response to stories about refugees.

One of the more extreme examples came when Leak tweeted “It’s coming get ready if you’re not ready you will not survive what is coming you have been warned stand your gsound”.

That's why we do not use the Internet we use the post and the dark Web Every man has the right to defend his own country to his own country and not be called a terrorist you are a terrorist by terrorist who are blowing us up.
He retweeted support for the ethnonationalist group Identity England – born from the collapse of the domestic iterations of Generation Identity\textsuperscript{13}.

Discriminatory tweets about Muslims included calls to remove all elected Muslim officials from their respective roles.

The conditions of the Linton-On-Ouse asylum camp have been revealed.

A bus will be provided so they can have day trips to York. There will be no curfew, restrictions on movement & they will be vetted.

It has a gym, shop, faith & worship place & medical facilities.

They are all at it 85% grooming gangs
A Twitter account inactive since 2015 included videos from Leak, one of which, in response to the terror attacks in Paris in November of that year, included inflammatory anti-refugee statements like; “time to close the borders and sink all these boats. Let’s sort out the strong from the weak”.
Andrew Leak: “It’s about time we shut down the United Nations”.

The same username (@andyleak22) revealed his Pinterest account. It included a post that included a statement that began, “We in the UK have a serious problem with Pakistan a Muslim grooming gangs”, adding, “this is part of their culture it is racism the reason is do with race it’s because they’re only raping white Christian girls”, posted three years ago.

In addition, a female professor from al-Azhar, has claimed that Allah allows "Muslims to rape non-Muslim women to ‘humiliate’ them."

Andrew Leak would later praise Stephen Yaxley-Lennon (aka Tommy Robinson).

Similar rhetoric would appear on Facebook, as he said that “all Muslims are guilty of grooming … they only rape non-Muslims” and only rape “white Christian girls”.

Tell MAMA saw posts where Andrew Leak called for uprisings amidst incoherent, confounding statements, Yesterday evening, we revealed how Leak had “liked” various far-right, conspiracist and racist pages.

Such examples included Enoch Powell was right; God Hates Islam; Close UK Borders; England Fight Back; Islam Exposed Media UK (which displays a photo of a copy of the Holy Qur’an burning as its profile picture); Islam 666; The Racist Posts; and Tumbling Down The Rabbit Hole (full of conspiracist materials).
Some of the above pages remain inactive (as of writing), suggesting that these views are long-entrenched, as ‘Islam 666’ had last posted in September 2021 and linked to a video about the so-called “globalist PLANdemic” echoing antisemitic discourse. In addition, the page ‘Islam Exposed Media UK’ has seen no new content since November 30, 2020.

Conversely, however, other pages remain far more active as of writing.

The Times newspaper revealed that Leak sought “revenge” for the murder of the Conservative MP Sir David Amess and shared content from “the far-right Traditional Britain Group, Turning Point UK and the US-based anti-Islamic movement ACT for America”\(^{14}\).

He had also experienced various account suspensions or temporary bans for the racist or hateful content expressed.

One racist post shared last year from Leak detailed how a claim that he had sent a letter to the government, warning that “I will end illegal immigration into this country within one year from the French boat side.”

Various nihilistic memes inspired by The Joker movies included quotes like “Die with Respect but don’t let your respect die” and “3 THINGS TO KEEP IN MIND NEVER BEG ANYONE. NEVER TRUST ANYONE. NEVER DEPEND ON ANYONE” appeared throughout Andy Leak’s Facebook.

He also took various photos of himself wearing masks from V for Vendetta and The Purge. During a visit to a branch of the pub chain JD Wetherspoon in Easter last year, he captioned the photo “1st time in a pub in Kenya”.

A neighbour told Sky News that Leak had rheumatoid arthritis and cancer, having experienced a recent cut in their benefits.

Homophobia and transphobia

HOPE Not Hate identified\(^\text{15}\) a further account linked to Andrew Leak before Twitter suspended the account for violating its policies. Comparing archival materials, we found several examples of anti-LGBT+ comments.

One tweet, dated May 24, 2022, recycled a long-standing homophobic myth blaming gay men for the apparent collapse of Ancient Rome\(^\text{16}\). Moreover, the homophobic stigmatisation around Monkeypox made headlines\(^\text{17}\) as medical professionals called for rapid, compassionate public health responses, not stigmatising LGBT+ groups and framing the virus in the problematising language that perpetuates the harmful myth\(^\text{18}\) of a “gay disease”\(^\text{19}\). Further tweets from Leak about the virus used more harmful, overt homophobic language.

Other homophobic tweets linked gay men to paedophilia.

An example of the transphobic content Leak shared or tweeted on Twitter.
Conspiracy theories

It is far beyond the scope of this short briefing paper to elaborate on existing literature and research on conspiracy theories. Instead, we want to focus on a few studies showing that the influence of such theories creates an orthodox opinion that seeks to remove space for “acceptable opinions”. The appeal of conspiracies arising from forms of validations whilst speaking to what some deem ‘a search for meaning’. Thus, collapsing complexities into digestible singular explanations best characterised by perceived dysfunction or evil doing.

Other research grounds the appeal in a socioeconomic disadvantage or the perception of belonging to the “losing” side of politics find validation from conspiracy theories.

Conspiracy beliefs have negative health consequences, especially around Covid-19 and vaccinations. A small study from 2012 found a “positive association” between political cynicism, conspiratorial ideation, and authoritarianism in the desire to remove the rights of others. Such findings may help us understand how someone like Leak expressed such views towards minoritised groups like Muslims and refugees.

I message to all parents. Do not test your children for COVID only in the fat throat and not the stuck frame. Up your child knows you will damage their brain. They have damage my brain. I don't think I've got it yet. I beg of you do not do this to your children. There are doing it to new bones, they say the hospital. Or your baby you're 16 born & become the property of the hospital. The fascists. Germans we will bring this to an end. Treason has been committed there. Queen is and the house arrest.
